Network of Organizations Working with People with Disabilities, Pakistan (NOWPDP) was established in 2008 as a Non-Profit Organization which aims to provide a common platform for different organizations working for persons with disabilities in Pakistan to come together and bring about an impactful change.

NOWPDP is currently working in the areas of accessibility/mobility, skills development, and employment of persons with disabilities (PWDs) through its three dedicated programs, The Rickshaw Project, heARTwork, and Yaqueen.
Disabilities continue to exist on the fringe of priorities for most countries across the world despite efforts otherwise. The United Nations established the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) in 2015, with multiple references to persons with disabilities and a special focus towards adopting a data centered approach for disability inclusion. As an organization, NOWPDP commits to implementing the SDGs and hopes to be at the forefront of this change as we look to the future.

From building an accessible workplace to working towards inclusive banking and setting the groundwork for a resource directory, we feel that a story is being written that will have an impact across our nation.

We are thankful to all our supporters for making all this possible and look forward to a new year with many opportunities to make a significant impact in the lives of persons with disabilities with your continued support.

The Rickshaw Project was launched in 2012 to improve on-road access of persons with disabilities through advocacy to bring about legislative changes and development of sustainable mobility solutions. The efforts on the two aforementioned fronts are supported by community engagement through awareness raising activities.

Community Engagement:
The Rickshaw Project team raises awareness about disabilities and persons with disabilities through sensitization sessions at educational institutions, and impromptu bai'athaks at public spaces. The aim of these is to break attitudinal barriers faced by persons with disabilities in our society.

Advocacy & Mobility Solutions:
In order to enhance the on-road access of persons with disabilities, The Rickshaw Project is developing sustainable mobility solutions and working with the different provincial and the federal government departments in the areas of licensing, duty-free import of retrofitted vehicles for persons with disabilities, and accessible public spaces and transport.

Model Accessible Workplace

NOWPDP modified its premises according to the guidelines provided by Accessibility Code of Pakistan 2006 to promote accessibility and inclusion in the workplace. The model serves as an example for public and private institutions to advocate the implementation of an accessible workplace.

Ramps at a ratio of 1:16 which can be accessed by persons with physical impairments

Tactile flooring which enables persons with visual impairments to independently access the office space

Workstations adjusted at the height of 2.5 feet for ease of access of persons with physical impairments

Handrails to encourage easy maneuvering for persons with disabilities within the office space

Braille signage for persons with visual impairments

Height adjusted switchboards and door handles for persons with physical impairments

Accessible bathrooms for persons with disabilities
Unfortunately, it (disabilities) is an area of lowest awareness in our society and even the so-called parha likha section of the community doesn’t give the required respect and opportunities to people with disabilities. I personally learnt quite a few new concepts and got motivated to do better in this area of extreme importance. Good work.

Muhammad Aliuddin Ansari
CEO, Engro Corporation, during a sensitization session by Yaqeen at Engro.

I found the children were so excited because they met young kids who were teaching them and they came up with beautiful artwork. I am delighted and I hope it (training) continues.

Talat Hashmi
President, Society of Rehabilitation of Special Children (SRSC), who partnered with heARTwork for training students with disabilities.

Testimonials by Partners

NOWPDP’s efforts in creating an accessible workplace, which can be taken as a model of inclusion by other organizations and institutions, are commendable.

Ramiz Baig
Institute of Architects, Pakistan (IAP), during the launch of the Model Accessible Workplace at NOWPDP.

The Rickshaw Project is a needed approach to the technical issues of making auto-rickshaws accessible both to drivers and to passengers with disabilities. The project also provides a valuable opportunity to test this approach as a service model which would include a focus on disabled passengers as well as drivers with limited mobility. I wish you every success as you move forward with this project.

Tom Rickert
Executive Director, Access Exchange International while commenting on The Rickshaw Project.
Interning at NOWPDP was a great learning experience. I was taught how to treat people who are differently-abled. It taught me that bringing a change doesn't happen overnight but requires a lot of patience, hard work and effort. NOWPDP has a very friendly environment and working there for two months felt like working with friends. In future I would love to work with NOWPDP as a team.

My experience at NOWPDP was amazing. I not only learnt how to work with professionals but also how to respect people with disabilities. I was astonished to see how united, hardworking and welcoming the NOWPDP family was. I am glad I got a chance to work with NOWPDP and in particular with Yaqeen. It was a journey full of learning and fun at the same time.

Testimonials by Interns of 2015

I was engaged with heARTwork where I learnt that a disability is not the same as being handicapped. From organizing exhibitions to visiting schools, I found the team extremely motivated in its goals. The journey has been one of the most different yet powerful ones! I am blessed to have worked with the most dedicated, talented, and inclusive people.

My stint at NOWPDP was instrumental in terms of shaping my perceptions regarding people with disabilities. It proved to be a great learning curve for me, making me realize the equal (not special) status they have in society. The Rickshaw Project drivers, especially Imran bhai, provided continuous inspiration in cementing the fact that people with disabilities are just as capable (if not more) as the rest in society.
